Workshop in The University of Nottingham: Digital tools for research

This afternoon event will provide information on and demonstrations of a number of tools and services for research in Engineering. It will follow the research life cycle and introduce how different tools can assist at different stages from planning to publishing to archiving. Updates on policy and external requirements will also be provided. There will be an opportunity to bring individual queries and issues for discussion and support.

Afternoon programme:

- 1:00 pm - Introduction - Open Science
- 1:30 pm – Tools for research planning
- 2:15 pm – Creating, storing and collaborating with data
- 2:45 pm – Coffee break
- 3:00 pm – Compute and Analytics
- 3:30 pm - Preserving and sharing research outputs and data

To book please go to: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/digital-tools-tickets-45095887012>

This is an opportunity that comes directly from the University of Nottingham and we consider it very interesting for you. Due to the short notice, it is not mandatory, and those of you who have your flights booked, there is no need to change. For the rest, feel free to join and book in the link above.
